FOREWORD

As an important show requires planning, co-operation, and help, so does any organized undertaking. In presenting to you this tiny reflection of the life and spirit of Hampton High School, we have been fortunate in securing these three factors from several sources. To everyone who gave us help we wish to express our appreciation, and hope that as you turn these pages you will find once again the fine spirit and happiness that is always so dominant at Hampton High. Now—on with the show!

DEDICATION

To one whose faithful work and leadership in Hampton High School have accounted for the success of countless students; to one whose efforts made possible our earliest yearbooks; to one whose unassuming life has prevented our securing a picture of her; we respectfully dedicate this, the ninth volume of the Krabba, to Miss Virginia Lee Amos, whom we admired and respected as a leader, and loved as a woman.

Oh World

*Oh World! Yield to us your riches,
We are young, but we are earnest;
Entered in your realm so wide,
We work and strive with zeal and zest.*

*Oh World! As we draw nigh to thee,
Completus tamen incipiens
We try for fame, renown and glory,
We want success and victory.*

*Oh World! Yield to us your best,
We do not ask too much of thee,
For in return you get from us
A stream of youth, inspiring, free.*

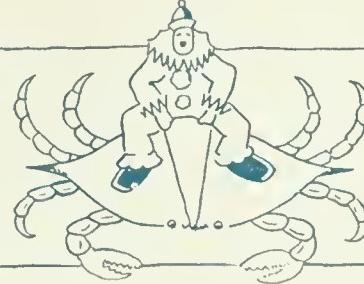

*Oh World! They call you harsh, unkind.
But will you treat unkindly
Those who approach thee eagerly,
The good in thee to find?*

*Oh World! Yield to us your riches,
Yield to us or you shall see
Us crush your might with ours,
By force of youth to capture thee.*

History of the Class of 1931

High School at last! That was our cry in September, '27, when meek as lambs, but greatly awed by our new surroundings, we entered H. H. S. Realizing that we must have capable and wise leaders to guide us in our new and complex life, we chose as our class officers: Dick Caskey, president; Elizabeth Winne, vice-president; Ena Lee Jones, secretary; Betty Morgan, treasurer. Although we were "quite green", we wished to co-operate and to feel as though we were a part of the great student body, so we became members of the Athletic Association and Literary Society. We chose Roxie Moore as our representative to the Student Council. Working hard that year, we succeeded in keeping most of our class together and it was on a certain day in June that we entered into our Sophomore year, realizing that we had been "green but growing", as was our motto.

To our loyal band, the following year, there were added students from Phoebeus and George Wythe, making a total of about one hundred and ten Sophs. With a brighter outlook we took up our work and strived to keep that which we had gained as Freshmen and to press on to higher goals. Since quite a few students were added to our class, we re-elected officers, choosing: Roxie Moore, Whiting Chisman, Ena Lee Jones, and Dick Suddith. Having outgrown the motto we had as Freshmen, we chose another more suitable to us as Sophomores, "No Prize Without Struggle". We had already found this true, but we wished greater prizes won by greater struggles.

In September, '30, we entered the Junior Class of our dear old Alma Mater. It was in this year that we won our prize after a mighty struggle with geometry and chemistry. Our class was well represented in the list of celebrities for this year, with A. L. Johnson, laziest; Henry Wolfe, most studious; Edna Lemster, man hater. We were also well represented in athletics, both on the field and on the floor. During that year we saw the organization of the High School band and we watched with eagerness its progress. We found the term "Tempus Fugit" to be true and suddenly we were looking forward to the long coveted Senior year.

Seniors! Whew, but it was a hard struggle. And now we're enjoying those Senior privileges which a year or two ago were so desirous. We stroll casually up and down the halls past the insignificant "rats" and what a pleasure it is to get out of sixth study hall. We admit that our Senior year is the greatest, but even now we realize we must continue struggling with our studies. We are very proud of the fact that the honor of being entertained by the Rotary Club due to the distinguished records of some of the members, has come to the Senior Class, the members being Harry Stark, George Deppe, and Henry Wolfe. Our most worthy officers of this term are James Taylor, Harriet Crawford, Pamela Kraft, and Cecil Frost. Organizations are not so numerous this year, but steps have been taken towards having a High School Golf Team. We all hope this will be organized and we wish the team great success.

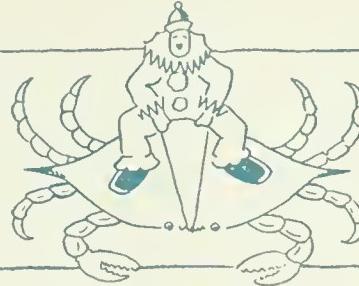

This is a brief summary of our history and we may say this of High School as Tennyson said of death:

*"The old order changeth, yielding place to new,
And God fulfills himself in many ways."*

The Last Will and Testament

The time has come to depart from this resting place and take arms to do battle unto greater things. So with saddened hearts we do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament.

1. Virginia Black leaves her singing ability to Marionetta Penny.
2. John Campbell leaves his beautiful school boy complexion to Ruth Black.
3. Virginia Barton, Maude Rhodes, Harry Stark, Pauline Thomas, Henry Wolf, and Edna Lemster leave their quiet dispositions and intellectual ability to Frances Winder.
4. George Deppe leaves his "Von Hindenburg" hair cut to George, the janitor.
5. Alfred Darden leaves his bluffing to anyone who can use it.
6. Cecil Frost leaves that permanent smile to Joe Carpenter.
7. Molly Masters, sometimes called "Esso", leaves the title to Mattie Mae Topping.
8. Harry Lewis leaves his talking ability to his kid brother.
9. Fred Schott leaves his electricity to charge the school.
10. Tyler Woodley leaves his manly physique to Roxie Moore.
11. Clara Smith leaves her gift of gab to Virginia Cathell.
12. Rosser Taylor leaves to take up wrestling.
13. Reuben Wallace and Beulah Quinne leave their red hair to John Williams and Hazel Kelly.
14. Eloise Craigs leaves a few pounds of weight to Mr. Thorpe.
15. Robert Van Volkenburg and Howell Estes leave their experimental ability and knowledge of chemistry to Lee Parker.
16. Vincent Cardwell leaves his athletic ability to Mac Curtis and his bus to Fay Carmines.
17. Bill Knewstep leaves a certain little blond in Phoebus.

The KRABBA

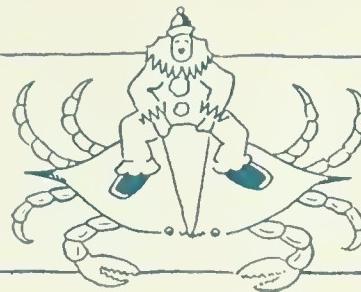

1931

18. Irma Clark and Harriet Crawford leave their athletic ability to the Brite sisters.
19. Bethany Wilson leaves in a red Chevrolet at lunch hour.
20. Alice Zephir leaves the title of "Greta Garbo" to anyone who can use it to any advantage.
21. Eva Riggins leaves her bridge playing to Agnes Swarthout.
22. Wilson Shepherd leaves his position over at Mrs. Mann's open.
23. Margaret Schmidt leaves her dancing to Margaret Sharman.
24. Charles Torian leaves some of his wit to Norwood Evans.
25. Mildred Bohlken leaves her artistic ability to Ruth Born.
26. Robert Coltrane probably leaves to be married soon.
27. Pamela Kraft leaves her dignity to Mary Burdick.
28. Millar Marple leaves those dreamy eyes to Charles Welch.
29. Elizabeth Haffner leaves her good work in French to Ned Morgan.
30. Martin Menges leaves his mathematical ability to George Wiatt.
31. Ruby Matar leaves her grades on Chemistry to Rose Lee Boggs.
32. Nan Lee Peake just leaves an angelic expression.
33. The other members of the class leave their good will in this, the Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1931.

FORT MONROE NOTES

Major Howell Estes and Major Robert Van Volkenburgh have returned to the post after visiting their sons, Howell III, and Robert III, at West Point.

Miss Marjorie Barrows,
a member of the faculty of Syracuse University, will arrive on Thursday to spend some time with her parents. Miss Barrows was mentioned in the University paper last week
as being a most popular and entirely successful teacher.

Word has been received by Major and Mrs. Stark that their son, Admiral Harry Stark, will arrive on Friday for a visit.

RADIO PROGRAM

Mr. Willard Miller, station announcer, offers the following program for station HSP tonight:

8:30, Miss Virginia Dare
Black, noted singer, accompanied on piano by Miss Beulah Quinn.

9:00, Mr. John Campbell, saxophone concert.

10:00, Mr. George Deppe saxophone solo.

10:30, Bed time stories
by Miss Eloise Craigs.

CONTRACT FOR ANNEX

(From page 1)
for the new High School
annex. Electrical work will be managed by the Schot and Houck Company. Mr. Charles Torian drafted the plans for the structure. This is the second annex to the building, the first having been made in 1931.

DEBATE TO BE STAGED

(From page 1)

Mr. Miller Marple and Mr. Edward Burge. The affair will be judged by Mr. Harry Lewis and Mr. Martin Menges who are at present doing work at the National capitol. The teams are expected to present lively arguments, as all four members have at various times before expressed their opinion on the subject. The public is most cordially invited to attend.

TAXES DUE

City Treasurer, Cecil Frost, has issued the last call for poll taxes and also all other personal taxes which have not been paid. Mr. Frost has set a record for collection of taxes this year which has not been equalled during a period of ten years. About 90% of the taxes were collected within the first month. Stenographical work was done by Ruth Staples.

WOODLEY - WILSON

A wedding of great interest to society of the Peninsula was solemnized last evening when Miss Bethany Wilson of Hampton became the bride of Mr. Tyler Woodley, also of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend A. L. Johnson. Mrs. Woodley was attended by Mrs. W. L. Warren as Matron of Honor. Mrs. Warren was formerly Miss Edith Moore. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for the Bermuda Islands. On their return they will make their home on the Boulevard.

ACTRESS LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

The press was informed yesterday by Miss Annie Shackleford, secretary, that Miss Bessie Weston will leave tomorrow to begin her third season on the stage. When she is not acting, Miss Weston stays at her home in this city.

NEW COMMERCIAL DEPT. TO BE OPENED

The chairman of the school board has announced that a new and larger commercial department will be opened at the Hampton High School. The rooms will be in the new annex. The following faculty has been appointed: Misses Pauline Thomas, Virginia King, Elizabeth Hunt, Pauline Hunt, and Miss Elizabeth Haffner as supervisor for the department.

BASKETBALL TEAM TO TAKE TRIP

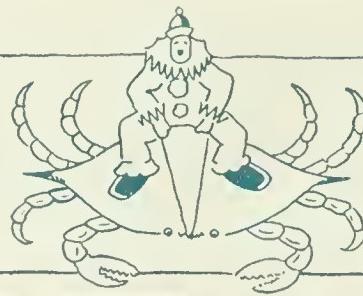

Miss Harriet Crawford, coach of the girls' basketball team, has arranged a game for the girls with the Niagara Falls High School.

SECRETARIES LEAVE

Miss Molly Masters and Miss Ruby Matar left last night for Washington where they hold positions as social secretaries. Mr. Cary Patrick motored them up.

Silhouette of Trees

'Twas dusk, and a row of trees
Outlined against the dreary sky,
Threw up their arms as if in praise
Of God, the Maker of all things.
Burned, yet as if they too had souls,
They swayed in unison with the tune;
The wind played in their scarred branches.
I wondered why God made the day
So bleak and dreary. Then, on second thought
I knew that he had made it for this picture.
A study in black and white, such as artist
Could never make, though he tried a lifetime.
A silhouette of trees! All looking toward their God.
Oh, that we could know and trust like they!

Sir Arthur Newbold

The Newbolds lived in the great mansion on the hill. The house itself seemed to warn everyone that those within were not the usual people. The townsfolk in Marion, England, heeded that warning and let the Newbolds and their mansion form a separate unit of the town.

The villagers knew when Sir Arthur Newbold died. They were not sorry. He deserved to die. People were curious. There must be a will, the estate was so large. Would the widow receive all? Would the wealth be equally distributed? Would anyone be cut off entirely? Sir Arthur had not been pleased with John or Polly lately. Who could tell?

A week after the funeral Mr. Joshua Pope, attorney-at-law, appeared at the Newbold home. He carried his brief case in a matter-of-fact way and walked in that dignified manner that people will use when they feel that they know something important which others are ignorant of. The family was in the parlor. Each tried to appear a little more grief stricken than the others.

"Good day. I am sorry to be obliged to come to this home on such a sorrowful task. I shall start reading this will immediately and I am sure I shall be able to clear any doubts you may have afterwards." Mr. Pope proceeded to unfold the legal document and to read. After he had passed the preliminary remarks his voice became a trifle more excited and he used more emphasis. "The entire Newbold family must live in the house which they now occupy for a period of one year. No one is to mingle with outsiders socially or for business purposes, during that time. Two years ago I placed one of the family in charge of my affairs. That one will watch your actions during that year. Everything you do will be judged. If your actions are not satisfactory you receive nothing. And," Mr. Pope drew his breath, "No one knows who that one is. You are not warned."

Joshua Pope folded the document and closed his brief case. "Does everyone understand?" One of them nodded and he walked out.

"What, understand? I think not!" Grandma cried in her high voice. "I must stay here with these—these—for a year? Hm!" She got up, and standing with head high, she walked out of the room.

Polly Newbold took her compact from her pocket and vigorously powdered her nose. "So," she drawled, "I'll be with my dear John and Percival for a whole year if I want to live happily ever after. All right, I can stand it if the rest can. Now, I wonder, one of us is the guardian angel. Well, here's where I'm behaving for one year of my life at least."

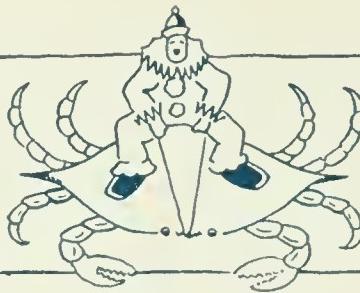

"Not mingle socially! Why, the old man must have been crazy! Oh, I had better keep quiet. I've got a guardian, twenty-three and I've still got a guardian. Well, Polly, I guess we'll play bridge for three hundred and sixty five nights. Lucky it's not leap year." John Newbold turned abruptly and walked out the front door. In a minute he returned and dropped, sulkily, into the nearest chair. "I forgot," he said, "I can't meet the fellows."

Of the family, only the Mother, Mrs. William Newbold, a widow, and Percy, the youngest son, now nineteen, had failed to express themselves. Mrs. Newbold was calm, she was always calm. She felt indifferent now. Her father-in-law, the late Sir Arthur, had forced her and the children to stay in the old mansion. When he had died she had hoped they might leave. Well, as she had been here twenty-four years, one more did not matter much.

Percy, as Polly expressed it, was "beyond hope." The money made no difference to him. He knew however, that it was necessary to have money to live. If the others stayed, he would stay too. At present he was too interested in the new biology book to bother.

The KRABBA

For twenty-four years Mrs. Newbold and Grandma had lived in that house together and the three others had lived there their entire lives. They had all hated it because they had been ruled by the one domineering personality of Sir Arthur. It seemed that one year more should not be of much consequence, especially with the hope of so much to be gained in the end, but before, at least there had been a live personality, while now each felt that that same man, dead, was yet to rule their lives. The thought made the life unbearable.

The next morning, the first of those three hundred and sixty-five, breakfast was served as usual at nine-thirty o'clock. Grandma, dressed in mourning which she despised herself for wearing, started the conversation.

"So," she began, "I suppose you all will stay. Well, I don't blame you, don't blame you. The will said the one who behaved most satisfactorily would get the money. That word may mean many things. We shall see." She finished her meal and immediately went to her room where she remained, busy in her own way, until lunch time.

The four left downstairs stared at each other. There was only one thought in the minds of three of them. One of these others was his guardian. That one was unknown, therefore the necessity for doing and saying only what was right before all three. To continue that acting for a year. And the one who held the key to all was not happier. To have to pretend that he was as anxious to do right as the others, to notice all that the others did without being detected. Newbold mansion was to be a great stage for that year.

After lunch Grandma again disappeared to her room. Mrs. Newbold left to do some mending and other such small duties. Polly and John read the latest magazines and Percy tried to finish the biology book. All appeared again for dinner. After the meal Grandma walked about the yard for exercise and the others tried to spend the time reading or playing cards. They retired at nine o'clock.

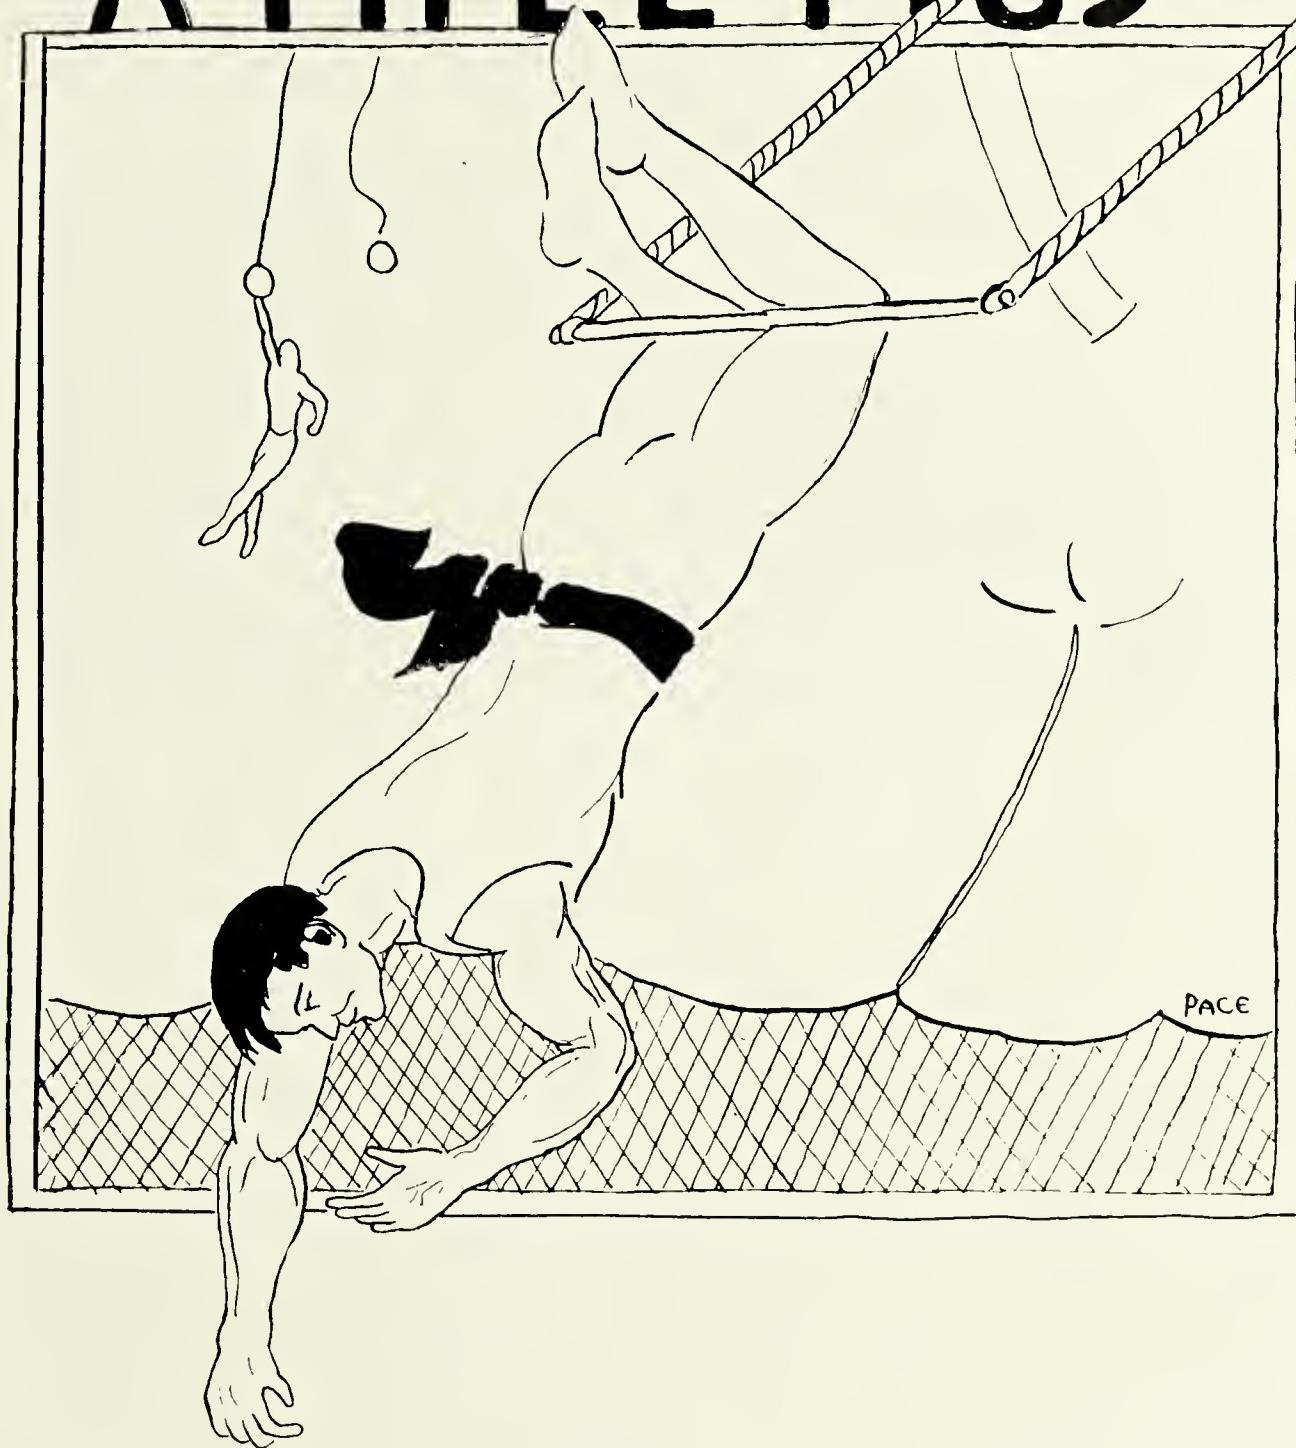

The will had been read on June the fifth. It was October and every day during those months each had followed the same schedule. Grandma's disposition had grown shaper and her short speeches were more abrupt and more sarcastic. Mrs. Newbold was still calm, but her calmness seemed more like forlorness. Nothing anyone said or did disturbed her. She looked tired and faded. Six more months without some change might be fatal. Polly was still just Polly. She wore her most stylish dresses around the house. They were just a blind to keep up her spirit. She read ceaselessly and played cards with John, faithfully, every night. John was almost broken. He longed for dances, parties, life. He had lost his physical energy.

Even Percy began to feel the strain sharply. Biology books can't last for six months. He needed people to discuss matters with. His work meant more than the money. On October the fifth, exactly six months from the date of the reading of the will, Percy left. He packed his bag, books, took whatever money he had, and left. He got on a train for London and went to the Research building where he was supposed to have started work when his grandfather had died.

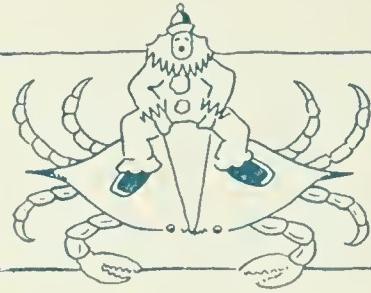

That same night at the dinner table Polly spoke. "Percy's gone," she said, "so I can tell everything now. I'm the guardian, you see, but not in the way you took it." She paused to take in the strange looks. She continued, "Before Grandfather died I had a talk with him. He told me that he realized how he had been ruling us, but it was because we were all so weak. He wrote his will in that way, but he gave me a separate signed document. He left each of us a neat income for life. The main point of that will was to try our characters. Listen to this." Polly produced a paper from her pocket, and read, "On the day that one of the family shall break that will and leave, forfeiting the money, he shall receive 50,000£, and if I could be there when it happened, I should heartily congratulate him." You see," Polly concluded, "Percy won.",

Football Summary, 1930

HAMPTON 6—MAURY 13

The Hampton High School squad went to Norfolk to play the Maury team on October 3. During the first quarter there was no score, but Maury loosened up in the second period to make two touchdowns and one extra point. The Crabbers held them for the rest of the game and even scored on the opponents in the third period, but failed to make the extra point.

HAMPTON 7—WOODROW WILSON 0

On October 25 the Crabbers, generaled by Ishon, swept aside their strong opponents, the Presidents, from Woodrow Wilson of Portsmouth, to a 7-0 score, on the Darling Memorial Field. It was a hard fought game, but the Hampton High School squad so excellent in their running and passing, that the Presidents were unable to keep up with them. Neither team was able to score during the first half, but during the third period, Fuller, of Hampton, carried the ball over for the touchdown and also kicked the extra point. This is the first time in six years that the Crabbers have been able to whip the Presidents of Woodrow Wilson.

HAMPTON 13—HOPEWELL 0

On October 31, the Hampton High School squad went to Hopewell and succeeded in thoroughly whipping the latter. The Crabbers played a fast, flashy game on a rather muddy field. In the first period Fuller pulled a sensational ninety-six yard run for a touchdown. In the second quarter he dashed off a fifty-four yard run and an extra point. Neither team scored in the last half.

HAMPTON 24—SOUTH NORFOLK 0

On November 7 the Crabbers walked over the South Norfolk Tigers, on the J. S. Darling Memorial Field, for a 24-0 victory. The visitors put up a stubborn fight during the whole game but failed to stop those dauntless Crabbers. In the first period Fuller smashed over the line for a touchdown but the try for the extra point failed. Sharf made another touchdown in the first quarter and again the try for the extra point failed. In the second period Curtis intercepted a forward pass and two downs later made the touchdown. In the beginning of the second half, Cardwell made a sixty yard dash and Fuller wiggled his way through the line for the touchdown. This ended the scoring for both sides.

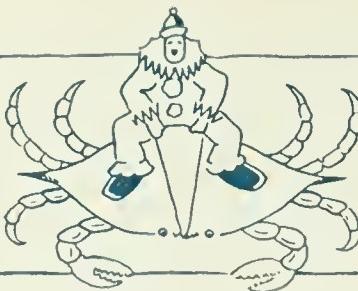

HAMPTON 32 —FREDERICKSBURG 6

The Crabber squad ended the season with a game with Fredericksburg. The Crimson and White completely swamped the visitors and used second and third string men during three periods.

During the first six minutes Fuller raced away for a forty yard dash for the first score and Cardwell carried the ball thirty-five yards for the second. In the second period Fuller carried the ball across for the third touchdown and Moore made the extra point. Curtis intercepted a pass and ran sixty-five yards for the fourth tally and then added the extra point. In the fourth period Fuller crossed the line for Hampton's fifth score. In the last period Fredericksburg made its only score on a pass and a fifteen yard run.

The 1930 football season at Hampton High School marked the death of the jinx that seemed to follow the Crabber eleven. During the past season, the team, built around a few letter men of the previous year, made a most creditable showing and succeeded in winning all games but one. Coach Bill Metts deserves a great deal of credit for the excellent way by which he whipped untrained candidates into a fighting eleven wearing the Red and White.

The record made by the football team this year has been one of which all Hampton people may be proud; one which has helped retain that old "do or die" spirit which is part of Hampton High School.

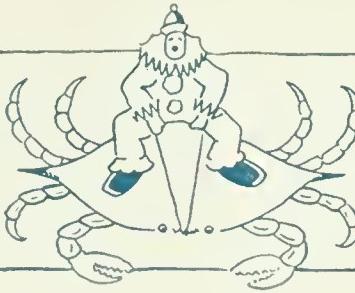

Although athletic relations with Newport News High School were not resumed this year, the Crabber eleven feels that had the game been played, the results would have been quite different from those of the past several years. With this thought in mind the contest between the neighboring cities next November is eagerly anticipated.

The following tabulation of 1930 football results indicates seven victories and only one loss, giving the Crabbers a total of 147 points with only 19 scored against them.

Now Speaking Athletically

*Roaring, rattling, wheezing on,
The high school Ford rolls by,
It's old in its make and will scarcely run,
The tires are patched and the windshild's gone;
It represents Ford's first try.
The doors hang loose like misfit wings,
The seats are torn and it has no springs,
The broken floor is split clear through
To where the engine smokes and hits on two.
The gas disappears like so much steam,
The chassis rattles in every beam.
The wheels turn like the axles were square,
And the tires have long been strangers with air.
The car was young when the fenders broke,
The engine wheezes and trails white smoke.
The sides are covered with jokes galore,
From broken fenders to rattling door,
But nevertheless she's here to stay,
The High School Ford rolls on its way.*

1931 Basketball Season

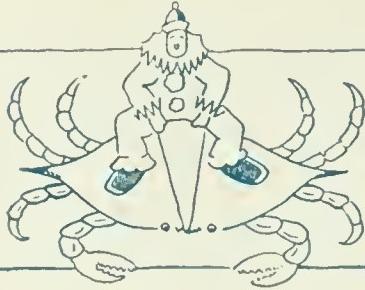

With Captain George Condon and Mae Curtis the only lettermen to return, Coach Metts started work in earnest at the beginning of the season to train new material. The result was a team which, although failing in the scores of some games, was a credit to the school. The season ended with better results, both in scoring and spirit, than the first few games indicated.

1931 Girls' Basketball Season

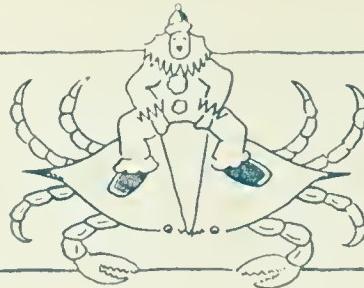

With only three letter wearers back again this year, the task of whipping into shape a strong girls' basketball team was the one facing Coach Metts when the call for girl candidates was sounded. However, Coach Metts soon found that his other athletic duties demanded too much attention to allow him time for the girls' team, so he placed the girl candidates in charge of Miss Indie Sinclair, director of physical education in the county. A group of willing workers soon became a fighting team, and prospects, at first vague, became brighter. The girls' team, then, however, met another setback when Miss Sinclair resigned to take up college work in New York. Left without a coach for a short while, the team under Captain Crawford and Manager Moreland, worked alone until Miss Cooke took up her duties as Miss Sinclair's successor at the opening of the second term.

The 1931 girls' team had a most successful season, capturing the long end of the score in most cases. Hard work, interest, and a strong fighting spirit all helped make the past season a most successful one, especially considering the fact that the team had so many difficulties to meet.

This Book

WILL be treasured by you as a record of the golden days of youth; of events large and small that will be thus recalled in later years and always with delight; of friendships that will remain forever green.

It will be the magic door through which you need only to pass; to step from age to youth! To us whose privilege it was to have a large and pleasant part in its making, this book will always be a reminder of the many friendships that grew and multiplied in its building.

And so we extend to the Class our heartiest congratulations and to those of you whom we came to know best, Adios! Hasta la vista!
